Republican Chairman Opens
Books to Show Where All
Funds Are Obtained.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Chicago, Aug. 30.—Senate investigation of republican and democratic presidential campaign expenditures started here today. The senatorial committee appointed prior to the election inquired into the financial operations of the national campaign chests, both the sums already raised and the amounts which the party leaders seek. The inquiry, for the first time, has become one of the paramount campaign issues.

Spurred by charges of Gov. Cox, the democratic nominee, of a $15,000,000 campaign fund and the statement by Franklin D. Roosevelt, Gov. of New York, that the committee is under $500,000, the committee is prepared for an exhaustive investigation of campaign funds.

Invited Gov. Cox, who was in St. Paul, was issued by Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee, George White, chairman of the democratic committee, Fred Upham and Wilbur Marsh, treasurer of the two committees; treasurers of the senatorial and congressional committees of each party, and Gov. Cox had been invited to attend or send a representative. The governor has indicated he will send information to support the effort of the senatorial committee and has said that it was possible that he would come to Chicago voluntarily.

The senatorial investigating committee is composed of Senators Kenyon, chairman; Pomeroy, Spencer, Reed and Edgar. It is the first time that the scope of the inquiry was being expanded to include the investigation of the campaign funds of the senatorial committee. The committee is charged with the duty of determining whether the campaign funds were being exchanged for political patronage and whether the campaign funds were being used for the purpose of securing the election of a candidate.

Without a record vote the committee received the newspaper's report that the committee was being organized. The committee was organized at Wheeling, W. Va., Pittsburgh, Pa., and Evansville, Ind.

A shorthand account of the Pittsburg speech was also placed in the record.

Will Hays, chairman of the republican national committee, who told the senators that the republican management welcomed the opportunity to submit the full report of the campaign to the national committee to eliminate any possible opportunity for sinister influences in connection with money in politics.

He said this plan grew out of two primary causes:

The real desire to work a real reform in the campaign of any possible improper obligation, and because experience in raising funds for war purposes had shown that it seemed possible to undertake that kind of action by a political organization.

Mr. Hays explained that the plan was proposed early in 1919 and had been in effect since that time. He said that the plan was to be a total amount which would be needed for the campaign, and that the plan was to be a total amount which would be needed for the campaign, and that the plan was to be a total amount which would be needed for the campaign.

For publicity $1,346,500 was appropriated and for miscellaneous objects, such as traveling and other expenses incident to raising of money, $889,935 was appropriated. Mr. Hays said that the plan was to be a total amount which would be needed for the campaign, and that the plan was to be a total amount which would be needed for the campaign.

Cleveland and Akron Seek Modification of Priority Orders.

Washington, Aug. 30.—Modification of the emergency order directing railroads to give preference and priority to the northwest coal shipments for the relief of the coal shortage in the northwest, was sought today from the interstate commerce commission by the chambers of commerce of Cleveland and Akron, Ohio.

Representatives of the two chambers asked the commission that some of the coal passing through the district for the relief of the northwest be diverted for Ohio cities. Coal shipments to the northwest have been sufficient to practically care of the needs of that section, it was claimed.

Officials of the commission said modification of the northwest priority order for the relief of the northwest is a precedent which would be established in favor of other communities seeking similar treatment.

HARDING ROUTES
SPEAKING TOUR

Chicago Sure of Date, Candidate Plans to Go to Western Cities.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Marion, Ind., Aug. 30.—Plans for speaking tours of Warren G. Harding are nearing completion, and announcement probably will be made soon of three or four other cities where he will deliver addresses.

New York and Chicago are understood to be virtually certain to be on the list of cities where he will speak. The middle west and west are under serious consideration. Denver, Salt Lake City, and Spokane, mark the route of the tour. The route of the tour is under discussion, but the nominee has been urged to go all the way to the Pacific coast.

It is understood that the St. Louis and Kansas City stops will be given an opportunity to hear the senator. The republican managers declare emphatically there will be no way short of a speaking tour to get Harding to the west. It is considered unlikely any speaking engagements outside Ohio will be made for dates earlier than October 1, but the senator has announced for September 8, at the Minnesota state fair.

Disagreements between the delegation and the soviet commissaires in command of the quarters where the Poles are held, have reached bewildering proportions regarding the use of a wireless plant by the Poles and the regulations to be observed where the delegates are living.

PAVING ABOUT 40 PERCENT COMPLETE

Six of 11 Blocks Paved With Brick—Big Start on 27 of 40 Blocks of Asphalt.

The end of August finds Janesville's 1920 paving program about 40 percent completed. Were it not for the failure of the interurban and street car companies to lay new rails, the program might now be more than half finished.

Two paving contractors—George Welch, laying brick, and the White Construction company, asphalt—have shown and are showing Janesville more speed in street building than has ever been seen here.

The brick paving, which is generally conceded to be the most satisfactory and encountering difficulties in getting labor, they have made great progress since their start, two months ago.

Six of the 11 blocks included in the brick paving part of the program have been completed and are now in use. They are: West Milwaukee, one-half block; Center avenue, five blocks; one block; Pleasant street, one block; Franklin, one block; and one-half block; North First, one block; and one-half block; Main to Bluff, one block.

The remainder of the brick paving, one block of it, is being held up to allow the trolley companies to lay new rails. These have not yet started on their new line, which is held up by the failure to lay tracks, although it is probable the line will be laid by the end of the month.

Center avenue, from Center street to where the brick paving ends, is ready for asphalt, to be laid by the White Construction company. The concrete base of the road is ready for asphalt, to be laid by the White Construction company. The concrete base of the road is ready for asphalt, to be laid by the White Construction company.

Nurses Training School

For the Training of Young Women In the Noble Profession of Nursing

We believe that many young women would be eager to enter Nurses' Training Schools as pupils, in the state of Wisconsin if they appreciated the splendid opportunity for service to their fellow-man offered by the greatest profession open to women. There is a large number of such training schools for nurses connected with the many excellent hospitals of this state.

Hence, the subjoined Catholic hospitals of Wisconsin, as members of the Wisconsin Conference of the Catholic Hospital Association, according to the following facts for the careful consideration and sympathetic appreciation of the young women of Wisconsin who are seriously thinking of what their future life work shall be.

(1) Nursing is a profession whose great purpose is to help the medical profession in the prevention, alleviation and cure of disease in human beings. According to state law each applicant must have finished two years in an accredited high school or the equivalent following the eighth year of the grade schools and must be of good character and sound health. The nurses' curriculum is of three years' duration and embraces regular courses in the necessary sciences along with daily practice in the technique of service to the sick. It is, therefore, an intellectual profession based on the sciences and arts called for in the highly specialized care of patients.

(2) Nursing is a noble profession because it involves consecrated service based upon the high purpose of caring for fellow human beings in need of watchful and sympathetic regard for all the wants of body and mind and soul.

(3) This deeply human and truly altruistic profession has a serious ethical intent which looks to the securing for the patient of all his God-given rights that affect the life and welfare of life in every contingency of human existence where life and health are involved.

Such a profession can have a strong appeal only to such young women as have an earnest and sympathetic appreciation of the deeper meaning and needs of individual and social welfare, and a strong urge within their own character to render this generous and conscientious service to ailing human beings which is peculiarly distinctive of a woman. The call is an urgent one and our young womanhood will not fail.

The following hospitals offer a course in nursing that is complete in its scientific and technical training, while it embraces with special emphasis the ethical and religious principles and motives which give such depth and satisfaction to one who serves the health needs of the fellow-man. The spirit of these schools is beautifully expressed in the words of Florence Nightingale:

"I do entirely believe that the religious motive is essential for the highest kind of nurse. There are such disappointments, such sicknesses of the heart, that they can only be borne by the feeling that one is called to do God's work, that it is a part of His work, that one is a fellow worker of God."

HOW WILL YOU VOTE ON THE MULBERGER LAW?

In the Gazette, Saturday, appeared the full text of the Mulberger law which is before the people of the state for final action by referendum on the September primary. How will you vote? One of the reasons for the passage of the law at the beginning was that the beer interests of the state wanted legal permission to sell beer of a 2½ per cent alcoholic content. But by the decision of the supreme court sustaining the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act, that part of the Mulberger law is annulled. However the act provides that if any part of the law is made inoperative the other clauses shall stand.

It will be well to read the law carefully and we believe after that has been done it will be decided that in spite of its objectionable 2½ per cent clause the people will vote for the law. This bill is the regulatory measure for the enforcement of prohibition. It authorizes the prohibition commissioner, his deputies, makes the sheriff and deputies and other peace officers jointly responsible for the enforcement of the law, and is drastic enough about keeping liquor on the premises to make the law effective if enforced.

The passage of this law will wipe out the saloon in Wisconsin. It will put an end to the standing bar and the brass foot rail will no longer be a part of the furniture of the soft drink place. No standing bar or counter can be maintained under the Mulberger law. Then the regulations in reference to soft drink selling places, license fees, sanitation, and the right of determination of the people as to whether any place shall be licensed to sell any liquors with even one-half of one per cent alcohol are of importance.

While it is true that the supreme court with one blow nullified the higher alcoholic content permitted, and the clauses in the Mulberger law in contravention of the federal law will be inoperative and of no force or effect, yet there is one thing that is material and important to make it quite necessary that we have the regulatory statute on the subject. The wet advocates will be in a predicament. The chief point with them was the 2½ per cent clause. All the rest was mere camouflage, to catch the objectors to the higher alcoholic content. Now, that the 2½ per cent part of the law is nullified the people may vote for the law with a clear conscience. Also it is something of a joke on the wet promoters.

THE VOICE OF AMERICA SPEAKS THROUGH HARDING.

There was no equivocation in the speech of Senator Warren G. Harding on Saturday when he told the Indiana delegation about the league of nations. It was the voice of America speaking for America. We have had so many briefs for other nations, so many speeches in behalf of stultified Europe and Asia that it is rather thrilling to hear a presidential candidate speak for his own, his native land. There was little question as to Senator Harding's attitude in his acceptance speech. That seemed to be clear enough that he was in favor of an international league with American interests protected. But some made effort to believe his utterance was ambiguous.

That the league is utterly powerless to prevent wars is already proved. That the league is one of force and operates as planned and signed by the 28 nations, to "prevent war by power of might and not by the power of right," is clearly shown by the senator. Had he been a member of the league, the moral obligation would have been to support Poland in the war with Russia—an "unthinkable thing," said Senator Harding. He summed up the president as a witness and quotes Mr. Wilson at the conference between the foreign relations committee and the president on the subject of our obligations under the league, as answering that "our moral obligation was greater than the legal" in the premises, and that we would be "untrue if we did not keep our word"—and go to war.

Senator Harding, citing this Polish instance as an example of the weight of the moral obligation on the American people and through them to congress, dismisses the possibility of congress keeping us out of war, under such circumstances. Were we in the league it would be the moral obligation of congress to follow the president and declare war. And against such a situation or the making of such an alliance, Senator Harding declares himself utterly opposed. "America can best serve all mankind as America, free and untrammelled, rather than one of a pitiable minority, among many states in merged world government." That is the declaration to which we are asked as Americans and the American nation is asked to subscribe. Can any loyal man refuse?

The impotency of the league, the necessities of many changes admitted by both France and Lloyd George as the outgrowth of the league failure as originally written, the practical abandonment of the league plan by Europe as a whole six months after it has gone into effect, makes it the more imperative that the United States does not enter under the Versailles treaty. Nor does it mean that we must have a separate peace with Germany. What is needed is merely a declaration of the governing bodies of the nation that a condition already obvious does exist legally. It changes in no way the terms of the treaty to which in detail the United States is a partner with the allied nations.

But Senator Harding does not stop at a mere elimination of the league. He goes further and accepts the plan of an international world court—the Hague tribunal with some teeth added—which will make it effective and be a league for peace and no longer for war. "Force of example will take the place of armed alliance." And

The Preachers of Cimarron

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Cimarron, N. M., Aug. 30.—The idea that a preacher must be a rather solemn and dignified looking person, wearing a Prince Albert coat and an expression of ineffable Godliness, is sharply contradicted in act and word by the divine who cares for the few hundred souls in this town, and a few thousand more scattered over the vast and thousand square miles of his wilderness parish.

The Reverend Gilbert B. Traveller calls himself a frontier preacher, and lives and dresses up to the part. He has no church as yet and no plans for building one. He is first going to establish a community center where his parishioners can have banquets, see movies, read books, and generally enjoy the world of God expounded by a young man who looks, talks and rides like a cowboy.

The regular garb of the Reverend Traveller consists of a flannel shirt, a pair of khaki trousers, high-heeled riding boots and an enormous felt hat. He spends most of his time riding from one mining camp, ranch or cow camp to the next. He has purchased for himself two fine saddle horses, which are spotted black and white, and are as like as two peas. The preacher can be recognized a mile away by the unusual color schemes of his mounts, for which he has refused five hundred dollars. He has also a good car for such points as are accessible. "Incidentally, I live in one of the best brick houses in town, and has an attractive wife and a large family of little Travellers."

A circuit rider is supposed to hold services when he can get together enough people, and also to marry couples and comfort the bereaved. The Reverend Traveller performs all of these functions as much as possible, but that, it appears, is not very much. In few of the places that he strikes are there enough people to justify a formal service. Worse yet, when these people do get together they go off to some place to have it done. It appears that they seldom have children and never die. This makes the conventional duties of the circuit rider very light, but he makes a lot of duties for himself. He acts as a sort of general friend and counselor to all and sundry, and this interpretation of the clerical function seems very acceptable to the people of Cimarron, for the preacher is popular.

Furthermore, he does not allow his religious duties to become a bore. He carries a rifle as well as a Bible when he rides the trails, and although he is looking primarily for souls in need of salvation, he has a keen eye for a bear or a coyote. In the hunting season he brings home now and then a wild turkey or a deer. And when the Lord's business is slow he cuts a good willow pole and snakes a mess of trout out of some stream. He holds strongly by the idea that there is reason why a preacher shouldn't have a good time.

Mr. Traveller, if should be added, is only thirty years old and wears a grin which causes him to look still younger. He grew up in the beef business and knows horses and cattle at least as well as he does the Scriptures. That is one reason he can throw a rope just as well as he can throw the fear of hell into a sinner.

If you imagine that Reverend Traveller has a sincere you have only to listen to the story he can tell you of the fifty or sixty years that this country has been settled, there have been several preachers here, all of them, like the Reverend Traveller, Methodists, but not all of them so well-fitted for their jobs. None of them stuck. Several of them left very hastily, and one or two were even expelled from here, to Heaven by ungrateful members of his flock.

The earliest of these pioneer divines was here back in the sixties, when Lucien B. Maxwell, the famous land baron, who was sketched in a previous Haskin letter, maintained his little kingdom on the Cimarron. Maxwell had a daughter, or whom he was so fond that he would not let anyone marry her. He used to meet all suitors with a gun. But a young army captain made love to Virginia Maxwell through the window of her bedroom on moonless nights. Finally she passed down her "toothbrush and a new pair of shoes" to him, and the two eloped. They hunted up this one and only preacher and wished upon him the hazardous job of marrying them. He performed the ceremony in the mill at dead of night and speeded the couple to Fort Union where the old man couldn't get at them. He therefore went after the preacher with a rifle and where the language used was not really fit for clerical ears. But the preacher stood his ground and told the irate Maxwell where to go as well as a preacher could tell him. What became of this preacher is not known, but Maxwell did not have the nerve to shoot him.

One of his successors who came to Cimarron after Maxwell had died was not so fortunate. The great Maxwell land grants had then been sold to a syndicate of British capitalists and there were stormy times in Cimarron. A number of squatters and miners had taken up claims on land which the English company claimed, and a regular little war was started by the English company and the squatters. Four men, who were hostile to the grant company were mysteriously killed. This preacher, who we will call Smith, had more nerve than judgment. He loudly and publicly asserted that he would find out who was guilty of the crimes and would have the murderers indicted. A couple of days later his body was found in the canyon with a bullet hole in the back.

He did not, however, die in vain, for he had been a well-liked man, and a mob of two thousand formed to avenge him. They lynched a Mexican who was said to have been paid to go to the job, and they were about to lynch an attorney for the English company when the United States troops intervened. That attorney still lives here, a man of seventy-five, and he can tell you a hair-raising story of how it feels to have a rope around your neck and over the limb of a tree.

Still later in this same struggle between the grant company and the squatters another Methodist preacher played a striking part. He organized the squatters into an army, and whenever proceedings were started to dispossess one of them he would ride to the scene at the head of three hundred armed men and block the course of the law. This militant man of God was an able lieutenant in the person of the local newspaper editor.

"We'll never get any results here until we've killed twelve or fourteen men, Jones," the preacher told the editor one day. The latter immediately produced his lead pencil and a piece of paper. "All right, doctor," he said. "Who shall we kill?"

This same preacher went to Washington to get justice for the squatters, but at first no one there would pay any attention to him. To relieve his obscurity he climbed to the top of the capitol steps and emptied his six-shooter into the air, thus bringing the senators and congressmen to him in a crowd.

"Our moral leadership was lost when 'Ambition' sought to superimpose a reactionary theory of discredited authority upon the progressive principle of living, glowing democracy. My chief aspiration, my countrymen, if clothed with power, will be to regain that lost leadership, not for myself, not even for my party, though honoring and trusting it as I do, but for my country, the country that I love from the bottom of my heart, and with every fibre of my being, above all else in the world."

Crocery stores anxiously wait the day when Jiggs will tell Maggie how to vote.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

GREEN APPLE TIME.
Green apple time! Oh the joy
Of a crisp, juicy, green apple
Casting a longin' greedy eye
At every tree he passes by.
Riskin' the direst consequence
To sneak into a park or grove
An' shake from many a loaded limb
The fruit that seems so near to him.
Gosh! but once more I'd like to be
The boy I was in eighty-three.

Here I am sittin' with my pipe
Waitin' for apples to get ripe;
Waitin' until the friendly sun
Has bronzed 'em all an' says they're done:
Not darin' any more to climb
An' pick a few afore their time.
No legs to run no hands to reach
The way these healthy youngsters do,
Just old 'nough to sit an' wait
An' pick my apple from a plate.

Plate apples ain't to be compared
With those you've ventured for an' dared.
It's waddin' 'em from branches high,
Or nippin' 'em when on a limb
Or ridin' 'em the times you feel
You really need another meal,
Or comin' unexpectedly
To a green apple tree.
An' grabbin' all that you can eat
That goes to make an apple sweet.

Green apple time! Go to it boy
An' start yourself right off 'n' p'or.
Watch for the farmer's dog an' run
There'll come a time it can't be done.
The fruit you've stashed into your vest
Nor climb, but you'll sit down like me
An' watch 'em ripenin' on the tree
An' like me when the time comes
To pick your apples from a plate.

Who's Who Today

SENATOR BRANDEGEE.
According to latest advices from Connecticut, Frank E. Brandegge, senior United States senator from that state, whose term expires March 3, next, will not be a candidate for re-nomination at the republican primaries. His reelection in November seems assured.

Senator Brandegge was born in New London, Conn., in 1844. He graduated from Yale in 1865 and three years later was admitted to the bar. The same year he was elected a representative to the general assembly of Connecticut. In 1889, he was elected corporation counsel of New London and was re-elected for two terms, filling that post for ten years.

Senator Brandegge, going to the senate in 1905, succeeded Orville H. Platt. He served until 1907 when he was elected in 1914 for the term expiring March, 1921.

Strongly opposed to the league of nations yet in favor of confirming peace at the earliest possible moment, the senator has been a strict critic of the Wilson administration. At one time he asserted in an interview on the league covenant that the United States was facing the question of preserving or surrendering the independence of this nation.

"The so-called covenant for a league of nations," he said, "is a hideous monstrosity. I shall never vote for it, and I believe that I think that event is somewhat remote."

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

The fight between Senator Lenroot and Senator La Follette seems to have divided down to a question of veracity between them. Senator Lenroot says he submitted an amendment to the Zach-Cummings bill to Senator La Follette and that the latter agreed to accept it. La Follette corrects the record which he found. La Follette says he never forgot about this incident, or as he intimates, it never occurred. We cannot believe that Senator La Follette would make an assertion, nor would Senator La Follette deny it if he remembered it. But the senior senator is growing older and his memory is growing fainter, so we are inclined to believe that he forgot it and let it go at that.—Antigo Journal.

Let it be repeated. This is what Senator Lenroot says of his colleague, the junior senator. "Perhaps because of fact that senator was usually absent from senate when he was not usually speaking. He makes his statement before he is asked to do so. He has never been pressed or had the record he would have discovered his mistake. Many senators in debate, myself among the number, stated exactly what they were stating in this campaign, namely that there was no guarantee of any kind extending beyond September 1."—Dan Claire Leader.

According to the Colfax Messenger a Colfax socialist said after listening to James Thompson that Mr. Thompson was a better socialist than either Eugene Debs or Victor Berger. As for Eugene Debs, the messenger compares Thompson with that of Lenroot. The local paper wondered at Thompson's silence on the dry question, the Plumb plan and affirms that Thompson's talk on the war is enough to condemn him in the minds of all good Americans.—Eau Claire Leader.

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO

August 30, 1880.—The grading on the Janesville-Bellevue railroad, which was progressing well. The piles are being driven; for the bridge at Atton.—George Y. Whitson and Asa C. Whitson, New York, have purchased the lease of the Fember House and will take possession at once.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO

August 30, 1889.—Every train coming into the city is loaded with excursionists who are coming home from the summer vacation. They are being attended by the Grand Army encampment. The largest load came this morning, ten extra cars being attached and all of them loaded.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

August 30, 1900.—Word has been received here from Detroit that Ogden H. Fishers, of this city, has been elected Supreme Chancellor of the Knights of Pythias of the United States, and that they will meet at the present officer Sample, at the annual convention there. The next convention will be held in San Francisco.

TEN YEARS AGO

August 30, 1910.—A letter has been received by Mr. Skavlen of this city from Joseph Dutton of the leper colony at Molokai, that leading physicians have been working on a leper cure, and that they think they have discovered it. Brother Dutton has been on the island since he was in the war.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Dr. Brady will answer all signed letters pertaining to health. Only inquiries of general interest are answered in this column. All letters are answered by mail if written in ink and stamped, self-addressed envelope is enclosed. Address Dr. Wm. Brady, Gazette.

THE FLESH IS WEAK.
state and administered or controlled by the public health department. Health plus, however, is the kind you build up by your own personal effort. It can't be inherited, found or purchased. You want it. Sure. But the question is, is the flesh weak? Is it acquired through regular hard daily exercise, about 15 minutes? What do you say? I have the system. Anybody want to try it?

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.
For Example:
Last week I wrote asking for Karol regimen and in reply you said I failed to give sufficient data. I am anxious to lose 20 pounds. I am 22 years old, 65 inches tall and weigh 116 pounds all dressed up. (E. L.)

ANSWER:—That is precisely why I sent you a "rejection slip." I don't want to be asked to reduce your weight to reduce when her proportions are so well high perfect. Allowing that your weight is 116 pounds, which I know is a lot for "em to weigh these parous times—your weight dressed up is 116 pounds. The perfectly proportioned woman, I suppose, is 100 pounds. You are 16 pounds at the dangerous age of 22 years. I do not pretend to understand why young women bloated with so much plumpitude should yearn to convert themselves into fragile clothes racks, but I guess I'll leave it to you to be a party to the deed.

Indine and Galtre.—Is Indine a good thing? How often should it be applied? If Indine is not a remedy could you suggest something for a goitre? (G. E.)

ANSWER:—Goitres are of several types requiring very different treatment. The chief types are simple goitre, a slight gland in front of or behind the Adam's apple, and a goitre among girls tend to eighteen in some sections of the country; exophthalmic goitre, which may cause slight or unnoticed enlargement of the thyroid but produces severe general symptoms such as nervousness, palpitation, rapid pulse, prominent eyeballs, tremor, loss of weight, fever, constipation, and conditions not at all noticed in simple goitre; and third is cystic goitre, which is a dangerous condition. Indine internally, not applied to the neck, is often curative in simple goitre. It is a dangerous condition to take, unless by your physician's personal direction. In exophthalmic goitre, the thyroid gland has no influence of cystic goitre. In Dayton, Ohio, it was found that very few cases of goitre were cured by iodine dissolved in the drinking water. Iodine dissolved in the drinking water, prevented simple goitre and enlarged thyroid glands in children, both boys and girls. If two drams of sodium iodide be dissolved in a quart of water, and a teaspoonful of this be administered to the boy or girl in a glass of water, for a period of six or eight weeks, it will probably cure simple goitre.

Q. What is the meaning of the expression, "As Maine goes, so goes the nation?" E. C. L.
A. This refers to the national election in November. For many years Maine was the only state holding a state election in November. It was the only state that made a tremendous effort to make a good showing in this election, both for the psychological effect and because it was an indication of the effect of party arguments upon the "independent vote."

Q. Did the United States ever enter into treaty with the Indians? H. H.
A. This would not be an exact statement. It is true that the United States negotiated many treaties with the Indians. It is true that the United States never made a treaty with the Indians. It is true that the United States never made a treaty with the Indians. It is true that the United States never made a treaty with the Indians.

Q. How many ex-py tribes are there in the United States? G. I. T.
A. The bureau of census has no statistics on the subject, but says that the Indian claims that there are about 5,500 tribes in this country.

Q. What foreign countries may American citizens acquire without having to secure passports? M. M. I.
A. The only country to which an American citizen may go at the present time without a passport is Canada. It is, however, necessary to secure a passport to go to St. Johns, Nova Scotia.

How was the Salton sea formed? M. R. C.
A. The U. S. geological survey states that the Salton sea was formed by the overflow of the Colorado river into the Colorado delta, leading to Imperial valley in 190-1906. It covered a small town known as Salton, which consisted of a few huts. The meaning of salt in the bed of the ancient lakes which once existed there.

Q. Just January I planted 200 chestnuts and none of them came up. When is the proper time to plant chestnuts and hickory nuts? J. H. A.
A. The best service for chestnuts and hickory nuts should be stored in cool, moist sand during the winter, and planted in the spring. Only 50 to 75 per cent of these nuts are fertile.

Q. To what extent were golf courses modified by the committee that met in England this summer? E. B. 9.
A. The stymie rule was changed so that if an opponent laid off a stymie, the ball might be lifted by the opponent. The ball was to be in conceding that the ball was in the opponent's hands. The penalty for a lost ball and ball out-of-bounds became a stroke and distance, both null and void. A ball in an unplayable lie can be treated as one out-of-bounds or lost, being played over with loss of a stroke and distance. The ball was to be played in weight and size.

Q. How much does the blood in a human body weigh? G. M. C.
A. The public health service says that the quantity of blood in a human body is 7.7 per cent of the body weight.

Q. What zoological garden is the largest? F. A.
A. In 1916 the New York zoological park was conceded the foremost place in the line of zoological gardens. The London Zoo, second place, and the garden in Berlin, third place.

Judge McBain in municipal court, in pleading guilty to being drunk. "Well, it will cost you $10.00 more," the judge told him. He paid. He did not tell where he got his liquor. Busy was not searched when put in jail and great wonder was aroused at the condition the following morning. A bottle of real "Jockey" found in his hip pocket still partly filled, told the story.

Getting More Gasoline

DEMAND FOR OIL GROWING FASTER THAN PRODUCED

Washington, D. C., June 29.—(Special).—Production of gasoline increased 1,857,690 gallons daily, or 14½ per cent during the first four months of 1920, according to a statement issued today by the bureau of mines. As against this increase in production, however, the consumption of gasoline increased 2,148,920 gallons daily, or 52 per cent.

(From an article Chicago Tribune, June 30, 1920.)

THIS epitomizes the situation accurately. It also indicates how great is the task of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana).

But fuel for automotive power must be supplied. Especially is this true in the territory served by the Standard Oil Company (Indiana), because in this area—the bread-basket of the nation—so large a percentage of the gasoline is consumed in producing food.

Take away—even cripple—the automotive power on the Middle West farms and food prices will soar because of decreased production.

The power-driven tractor is the only means by which the farmer can cope successfully with the shortage of man-power.

By extensive research and intensive application the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has increased the yield of gasoline from crude to the greatest degree yet known. But it is not satisfied.

The Company is striving to further increase the yield so that the use of the tractor, truck, the automobile, and the stationary gas engine may be used freely and without restriction.

It is apparent that the Standard Oil Company
